POLLY LARKIN

Don't carry your trials and tribulations, your misfortunes and disappointments to your friends and make them a partner in your woes. It does not help you to any extent and it airs an unenviable part of our life that is calculated to do more harm than good. Particularly is this so if it relates to your family affairs. Nearly every one has a skeleton in their homes and the majority of people will do all in their power to keep the outside world from knowing of this hidden grief. The exceptions are few and far between but still people do exist to whom the relating of things pertaining to weaknesses, afflictions, etc., in their own family circle is one of the pleasures of life. The story of their woes has been told so many times that the unpleasant phase of life to them and those around them is no longer a secret but has become common gossip. They talk too much—that is the failing or weakness of those who discuss family matters abroad and who seldom give anyone the impression that they ever have a pleasant side to their lives. There are others who hold their griefs and disappointments, and particularly everything relative to home affairs, as almost sacred. Few persons outside of their own families ever know of anything disagreeable occurring. They do not crave the sympathy of a curious public and would resent prying into their family affairs as a piece of impertinence.

There are many "Paul Prys" in this world, and some of them are moved only by the best of motives. They have no wish to offend when they begin to pry into your affairs, but it is a mistaken kindness on their part, and one of the worst features of these people is their blindness in not seeing that their efforts are distasteful and objectionable.

We are gradually waking up to the fact that only the brightest and best side of life is to be discussed in public. We will not allow others to be shadowed by a passing glimpse into the somber side of life. I met a little friend recently who had undergone such a great transformation that I could not help but gaze at her in wonderment. She looked ten years younger, and not once did she refer to unpleasant things as had been her custom for years. She was bright and smiling. The corners of her mouth no longer drooped sorrowfully but were arched by the merry little laugh she gave vent to every now and then. The happy ringing laughter, the bright face and sparkle to her eyes, all of which had been a stranger to her friends for so long that they naturally commented upon it and likened the change to that of a butterfly that had left its ugly chrysalis behind it.

"An honest confession is good for the soul," she replied to a friend who commented upon the change that had taken place in her appearance. "You see, I belong to a club of six, and all of us are pledged not to look on the dark side of anything, much less discuss it. We turn our faces resolutely from anything unpleasant. We will not listen to anything that will cause us to be sad and despondent. We reason that we cannot help matters by listening to it or discussing it; if we could it would be an entirely different matter. In glancing over the daily newspapers we do not read about accidents, suicides, murders or the like—that is a subject we know nothing about when it comes up for discussion, and we don't want people to tell us anything about them—in fact we will not listen to such subjects. I have offended many of my friends by asking them to refrain from telling me anything unpleasant. I am better and happier for it. I know I am more agreeable company. I am no longer troubled with insomnia, but sleep restfully and quietly, and if I dream at all, they are not the awful, wretched dreams that paralyzed me with fear of terrible disasters that to my unhappy superstitious mind were only the forerunners of evil. I wake up in the morning now refreshed and ready for the day. There is a new song in my heart, for I will not borrow trouble; will not cross bridges before I get to them. It is soon enough when I come to them and I am schooling myself to say and believe 'whatever is, is best.' I have drawn a black line across the past, the record is closed for all time and I will not delve among its musty pages. I have no use for regret, for that is something belonging to the past. People say I look years younger since I began living up to this creed, and I am sure I feel so and as though I had taken a new lease of life as well. I look back now and think what a bore I must have been, and how people must have dreaded to see me coming 'round. It was selfishness, Polly, pure selfishness, for I thought only of my own miserable little self. I poured my pitiful tale of woe into everyone's ears who was polite enough to listen to me. I am ashamed enough of it now. Since I started to lead this new life I see things in a different light. This grand old world is so much more beautiful than it ever was before; the flowers are sweeter, my friends dearer and nearer than I ever dreamed they could be. My cry used to be, 'I will be glad when the end comes, and my summons to go hence cannot come any too soon to suit me.' Life was not worth the living and the outlook for the future was dreary and cheerless enough. You never hear me making such a complaint now. I expect to live to a good old age, and every year will bring its additional joys. When my summons comes I hope to be ready for the boatman pale; still I am not spending my time in the depths of despair and waiting with gloomy feelings for his visit. This grand old world is good enough for me as long as I am permitted to remain. Away with sorrow and regrets. I would like to form clubs like ours all over this bright, beautiful world."

Polly wondered if this bright little friend was not practicing "Bushido," a law of the Japanese, which they consider as essential to good manners, and it has a good deal to do with their native chivalry, which is one of the most agreeable traits of these little brown men. The law of "Bushido" demands that its followers shall refrain from exhibiting signs of grief, distress, trouble, pain or other depressing conditions in the presence of others. The Japanese may pour out the bitterness or grief in his heart before his family, but in the presence of others he is the same suave, smiling and courteous being you have always known him. They will endeavor to hide all physical pain as well. They believe that it is their sacred duty to their fellow man to keep anything from him that would cause grief, sorrow, pain and unpleasantness, so they spare the feelings of others by concealing their own, and they further belive that a person's sorrow, grief, pain and trouble are too sacred to be exposed to the world. Would that every member of the human family could practice "Bashido."

BRIEF REVIEW.

Snakes an Object of Worship.

A peculiar phase of the worship of the Huichol Indians is their adoration of serpents. Not only are all the goddesses supposed to have the form of serpents, but also nearly everything else in nature; for instance, the rivers, the trails of men and deer, and the falling rain are showers of serpents, the wind waving the corn, and the grass, the corn itself, the long hair on the people's heads, their ribbons and girdles—in short, anything long and sinuous. Serpents living in or near water impart their own sacredness to this element; their cleverness, manifested in the beautiful markings on their skins, appears again in the life-giving power of the water, and the land is full of sacred things, each of which receives its due quota of ceremonial objects.

Geniuses Produced In Private Schools.

An article that appeared recently in one of the magazines contained some interesting statistics anent the relative value of public and private schools in the education of girls. The number of successful women authors educated in private schools was 201, against 55 who mastered their rudiments at the expense of the city and state. Of prominent women journalists 8 were educated in public and 26 in private schools. The women scientists were 5 of public school education and 4 of private. Lawyers having attained distinction in their chosen careers were: Public schools 2; private, 3. Five artists were public school girls, against 19 from private institutions.

Bees In Warfare.

There are at least two recorded instances in which bees have been used as weapons of defense in war. When the Roman General Lucullus was warring against Mithridates he sent a force against the city of Themiscyra. As they besieged the walls the inhabitants threw down upon them myriads of swarms of bees. These at once began an attack, which resulted in the raising of the siege. These doughty little insects were also once used with equal success in England. Chester was besieged by the Danes and Norwegians, but its Saxon defenders threw down on them the beehives of the town, and the siege was soon raised.

English Sand Glass.

In the British House of Commons, as soon as the question to be decided is put from the chair, a clerk at the table sets in motion a huge sand glass, familiarly known to members as the "egg boiler," probably because it takes three minutes to run out. As the last sand runs through the glass the sergeant-at-arms instantly locks the massive oak doors of the chamber, and only those members who have succeeded in getting through the doorway can vote.

As a result of a wager that he could eat a quart of salted peanuts Rex Subbs of Fairfield, Ia., 17 years old, is dead. Death was caused by abscess of of the intestines, brought on by his gastronomic feat.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

Current Events Specially Selected and Condensed.

Minnie A. Bailey has been appointed Postmaster at Julian, San Diego county.

Twelve years at Folsom was the sentence meted out by Judge Hall to Frank Tietz, who was convicted of burglary in the first degree for having robbed the hen roost of John Russell in Fruitvale.

E. J. Schmidt, a contractor of Oakland, was arrested and charged with stealing 2000 brick from S. Livingstone who had employed him to tear down a building in East Oakland. He was arrainged in the Police Court and pleaded not guilty.

Seven hundred cigars and a quantity of silk were seized by customs inspectors at San Francisco in a launch which was lying alongside the transport Logan. The stuff had evidently been thrown from the transport to the launch that the payment of duty might be avoided.

Judge Ogden committed Henry H. Halverson, a carpenter, living at 1223 Thirteenth street, Oakland, to the Insane Asylum at Stockton. He had been failing for several months. He was so violent that it was necessary to restrain him with straps.

Isaac Shay, a native of Ireland, 66 years of age, dropped dead in the washroom of a lodging-house at 614 Howard street, San Francisco. The body was removed to the Morgue. He was a heavy drinker, and it is believed that death was due to natural causes.

The Bureau of Equipment of the Navy Department has planned to establish a large coaling station with a capacity of 100,000 tons at California City Point, on the western point of San Francisco bay, where the Department has acquired a tract of land.

Warden Yell of the Folsom State Prison, assisted by several prison officials, captured twenty-five pounds of opium that had been smuggled into the prison yard at Folsom. A large wooden stake on a flat car had been hollowed out with an auger and the opium was secreted in the cavity.

Frank Jones, who did business at 997 Market street, San Francisco, pleaded guilty before Police Judge Fritz to conducting a lottery place, and paid a fine of $100. He was arrested by Policeman Regan, who found that he had been managing a raffle with tickets to the St. Louis Exposition as prizes.

The Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood, Oakland, has filed an answer to the suit brought by Henry M. Schack to recover $2000 on a benefit policy held by his late father, Jans A. Schack. It is claimed by the lodge that there is no money due on the policy, because the holder committed suicide.

The Postoffice Department in Napa has just completed taking a census of the city through the mail carriers. The result shows the population at present to be 5643, against the report of the Federal census of 1900 of 4036. This is a gain of about 40 per cent in four years. The introduction of several new glove and shoe factories and a big cannery establishment have contributed much to the present growth of the town.

After being convicted of murder in the first degree, and then granted a new trial by the court, Charles Pierce, a carpenter, who killed Michael Castellano at San Pedro, pleaded guilty to the charge of murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment at San Quentin. Pierce shot Castellano, who was a bartender, through the head with a revolver, apparently without provocation. He pleaded hereditary insanity.

A syndicate of Boston capitalists has disclosed the information that an electric railway is to be built this fall from San Jose to Palo Alto, connecting all the towns between these two points. C. B. Good, the agent of the Boston syndicate, has been in this section for about two months, and he has not been idle. The route of the proposed railway has been mapped out and surveyed, and a private right of way secured through one of the richest farm and orchard sections in this part of the country.

Terence Brady, a well-to-do plumber of Oakland was found in a dying condition by Policeman J. H. Helms at the corner of Fremont and Mission streets, San Francisco. A lacerated scalp, bruised face and fracture of the base of the skull were presumably explained by the fact that he was without his watch, and a sum of money estimated at $80 was gone. On removal to the Harbor Hospital it was seen that Mr. Brady's condition was most serious and he was taken to the Central Emergency Hospital.

L. Volci was held up at Napa and relieved of money and jewelry. Volci was walking toward town on South Randolph street when three men came up and seized him, at the same time confronting him with pistols. One of the men gagged Volci with a handkerchief while the other two robbed him. They secured a purse with $25 in gold coin and a watch and chain. The highwaymen then disappeared and Volci immediately made his way to the Sheriff's office and reported the robbery.

A fatal accident occurred at the rifle range back of Ord barracks, Pacific Grove. A party of four belonging to Company F, Fifteenth Infantry, were at target practice. Sergeant Lemay and another soldier were in the pits in front of the targets scoring for the other two soldiers. Lemay, thinking these two had finished, raised his head out of the pit just as Private Skinner pulled the trigger. The bullet struck him in the left temple. He was conveyed to the hospital, but died just after dinner call sounded. Lemay was a native of Massachusetts and very popular with Company F.

The officers at San Luis Obispo are much exercised over the finding of the body of an unknown man hanging from the rafters of a barn on the ranch of A. P. Siveria, in the southern part of this county. For the past few days the man had been seen about the saloons in Guadalupe in company with several other strangers. He had several fights with his comrades, and the officers are inclined to think that he may have been the victim of foul play. Circumstances point more to this than to suicide. No one has been found who can identify the dead man.

About Sonoma Creek

Sonoma creek is to be dredged, and the channel made available for improved water communication with San Francisco. That was the decision arrived at by an enthusiastic gathering of the citizens of this valley held at Union Hall on Saturday afternoon, June 25. Robert Poppe was called to the chair and briefly stated the object of the meeting. F. I. Vassault was appointed secretary. Resolutions were adopted providing for the appointment of a committee of five to carry on an active campaign between now and the meeting of Congress in December to secure the support of the nominees for Congress and of influential bodies in the State. Meetings are to be held, petitions are to be circulated, and pamphlets are to be published showing the necessity of the proposed improvement. The committee consists of the chairman, the secretary, Robert Hall, E. Johannsen, Robert P. Hill and Thomas Johnson.

An exchange says the poll tax ought to be abolished because it is unjust and unequal. And the Cloverdale Reveille facitiously remarks: "Friend, do you know that the difficulty of abolishing the poll tax is because it is unjust and unequal?"

Victor H. Metcalf has been appointed Secretary of Commerce and Labor. Mr. Metcalf is the present Congressman from the Third Congressional district, which embraces the counties of Alameda, Contra Costa and Solano. He is a lawyer by profession.

A grand entertainment and social will take place in Mervyn Hall, Glen Ellen, on Saturday evening, July 2d, for the benefit of the new Catholic Church. An excellent program will be rendered, in which the members of the Occidental Quartette and the boys of the Lelhi brigade, all of San Francisco, will take part, Refreshments will be served. Admission to the hall will be 25 cents.

LOST, strayed or stolen from the Free Public Library, a book entitled "The Cat of Bonbastes," by G. A. Henty. Finder will please return to the library immediately.

DROWMED WHILE BATHING

Sunday Morning was this Man's Time

Word was received here Sunday morning that a man had been accidentally drowned in Sonoma creek just below the landing place of the schooner Four Sisters.

Judge Small immediately notified Acting Coroner Thos. B. Wilson at Petaluma, who deputized him to go to the scene of the accident and to bring the body and the deceased's effects to Sonoma.

Judge Small, Undertaker Bates, Claude Johnson and a reporter repaired to the scene and brought the remains and effects and placed them in the City Pavilion.

The following morning the Coroner arrived and upon an inquest being held, the following facts were elicited:

The man's name was Edward John O'Neal, of San Francisco. He was about thirty years of age and at the time of his death was employed by L. and J. Hirsch, who were baleing hay for the Pacific Reclamation Co., near Embarcadero.

The unfortunate man went into the water for the purpose of taking a bath, and was clad in a suit of underclothes. By some means he became entangled in some fish lines belonging to two small boys who were fishing near by. The lines and underdrawers became tangled about his ankles. The poor fellow, thus handicapped, lost his head apparently and sank three times before assistance could reach him.

Peter Bassalia heard the alarm of the boys near by and hurried to render such assistance as he could, but to no avail. Mr. Bassalia then called to the men on the schooner, Four Sisters. A boat was soon manned and the body taken from the water. Capt. Hauto and men did all they could to resuscitate Mr. O'Neal but life was extinct before they reached him.

The unfortunate man was said to be honest, sober and industrious, and previous to being engaged by Hirsch Bros., had worked on the Spreckles ranch at Sobre Vista.

Nothing was found about his effects that would lead to any clew as to where his relatives lived, although he had previously remarked to a fellow-worker that he had a sister living in the Mission, San Francisco, and that he was formerly a member of the 14th Infantry, N. G. C.

Acting Coroner T. B. Wilson of Cloverdale came over from Petaluma on Monday morning and held an inquest and the verdict of the Jury was that death was due to accidental drowning, and substantially in accord with the facts as stated above.

A Sonoma friend telegraphed to the deceased's brother-in-law, Mr. Al Skinner, who resides in San Francisco, and he came up Tuesday evening and took charge of the remains, which were shipped to San Francisco for interment Wednesday morning.

Bad Men from the Bay at El Verano

With the crowd of 200 pleasure seekers who visited this burg from San Francisco last Sunday, there came three really "bad men," who, after getting "boozed up" to the proper caper, undertook to run things to suit themselves in this town. On their way to catch the evening train at Verano, one of this festive trio saw and immediately fell in love with a hammock belonging to Postmaster Mullen's little girls, and climbed into it to sleep off the effect of his day's debauch. After being requested several times to climb down and out of the hammock, the hilarious intruder refused, when Mr. Mullen very promptly dumped him out on the cold, cold ground and carried the hammock home. Shortly afterward as Mitchell and Tom Mullen were proceeding towards Verano to board the train, they were "help up" by the three desperados, one of whom was easily resognized as the man whom their father had ejected from the hammock a short time previous. Then a battle royal took place. Tom threw off his coat and shouted to the three not to strike his brother, Mitchell, as he had only one hand, but to no avail. Mitchell, however, proved equal to the emergency, and at once prepared for action by detaching his false hand from an iron bound leather socket, which factens it to his arm, and bravely engaged one of the burly hoodlums, and in the scrimmage which followed succeeded in striking his antagonist a terrific blow on the mouth with the iron bound socket, which shook the shap's ivories so badly that he was put hors de combat on the double quick. Tom fought the other two like a wild cat to a stand still, and though they marked his face badly, he succeeded in putting the prints of his fists on the phizes of thase "sports" from 'Frisco. Later on a warrant was sworn out and Constable Ryan took two of the bad men off the train at Sonoma, and a short time after captured the other at El Verano. It is hoped that after experiencing the gloomy inside of the Sonoma bastile and having to pay a fine of $15.00, these three merry "sports" from 'Frisco town will "look a leedle oud" as to how they conduct themselves should they ever again come in our valley. Citizen.

El Verano, Cal., June 27, 1904.

A FINE GAME

One of the most brilliant and interesting ball games of the season was played here last Sunday, resulting in a victory for the Ideals. Score 9 to 5.

Gunn, the young southpaw for the Ideals, barring a little wildness, pitched shutout ball.

Roy A. Pauli, the genial manager and left fielder of the Sonoma's, played one of the most sensational fielding games ever seen in Sonoma. He handled eleven chances without an error, and that's going some for an amateur.

Big Jack Goodbrand surprised the fans by striking out three times It must have been his off day, and we hope he will be back in his old-time form next Sunday.

The game was a pitcher's battle from start to finish, in which Gunn came out best man.

HAPPY AGE

Is healthy age, and the health of old age is ruled by the stomach. Throughout life the stomach is in fact the vital center of the body, but the fact is never so much appreciated as in the time of old age when the proper nutrition of the body is of the first importance.

Old people who are weak and who fail to assimilate nourishment will find wonderful benefit in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food from which all physical strength is derived.

"When I wrote you for advice, I was feeling very miserable with not simply one ailment, but general debility," writes Mrs. Martha Jones, of Claremont, Surry Co., Va. "I purchased a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also one of 'Favorite Prescription,' and a bottle of 'Pellets.' I soon began to improve, and continued taking them until I was feeling so well I discontinued. I do not find many testimonials in your book from ladies as old as I am—seventy-three. I think no medicine equal to yours for old people. It makes their declining days easy and cheerful."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The best laxative for old people.

AT DUNBAR

The Improvement Club Meeting

The Dunbar Improvement Club met in the Dunbar school house near Glen Ellen Saturday.

A Communication from the Sonoma Odd Fellows relating to the celebration of their fiftieth anniversary was read and placed on file.

The free market bill prepared by Thomas Johnson was given a preliminaryreading. It will be brought up for discussion at the next meeting of the club.

The report of the committee appointed at the Good Roads Convention to revise the work done by the convention, was read. It embodies the principal features suggested by the convention for a new road law. The report was endorsed by every member of the committee.

Election of officers for the ensuing term was held with the following result: J. Harry Weise, president; W. L. Ashe, vice president; L. W. Justi (re-elected), treasurer; A. S. Woods (re-elected), secretary.

Mrs. Caroline Rickey-Olney, the secretary of the Camino Real Association of California, who is organizing branches throughout the state, made a lengthy address, setting forth the objects of the association, which are to unite the commercial, social and agricultural interests of the state in a general plan for the improvement of the highways, such plans to include the procuring of legislation that will provide for the participation by the state government in the location, surveying and platting of a comprehensive system of roads for the state, and the appropriation of a fair proportion of the funds necessary for the construction of the same. Another object of the association is the preservation of the original Spanish roads between the missions. The association was formed last April. Mrs. Olney was assured that the Dunbar Improvement Club would endorse and co-operate with it in the cause of good roads.

Mrs. Caroline R. Olney, secretary of the El Camino Real Association of Los Angeles, was present and gave a very interesting talk on the history of that historic highway, and explained the benefit that the people of this State could derive from opening the Camino Real. This lady is a clever and entertaining speaker, and her hearers were greatly interested.

Upon motion the club voted to endorse the proposition of presenting the matter to the Legislature.

A FINE PROGRAM

For Saturday Night at Glen Ellen

Following is the program of the entertainment to be given for the benefit of the new Catholic Church at Glen Ellen on next Saturday night:

Tenor solo, Queen of the (Pinsenti), Harry G. Dowdall. Parlor Pastimes (by request), Louis Bertand and Fred Keser. Vocal duet, El Trovadore, Miss Schmitz and H. Dowdall, Recitation, Miss Amy Poppe. Sellection, Occidental Quartet. Dancing will follow.

Plans Desired

Everybody is invited to submit plans for a new stone drinking fountain to be built by the Woman's Club in the Plaza.

All plans are to be in before July 9th next, and any person having any ideas, plans or suggestions in regard to the fountain are assured that the Club will appreciate their presentation very much.

The idea the ladies have is to construct a fountain ornamental and satisfactory to all, and every encouragement should be extended to them in their laudable efforts.

Gathered In and About Town

F. M. Burris of Santa Rosa spent Sunday in Sonoma.

F. T. Duhring went to San Francisco Wednesday morninng.

D. A. Fussell transacted business in San Francisco Monday.

Harry Shaw had business in the bay city one day this week.

William and Frido Clewe went to San Francisco on Monday morning.

Judge Small visited Santa Rosa and Petaluma on Monday and Tuesday.

Henry Lutgens and son Harry went to Black Point Monday morning.

L. S. Simmons returned Monday from a business trip to the metropolis.

A. Baccala of the Swiss Hotel returned from San Francisco Tuesday evening.

A. Crelini of the Broadway Market was a passenger on Monday morning's train.

Jos. Ryan drove a bus load of pleasure seekers from El Verano to Santa Rosa Tuesday.

S. Scnocken returned home from his regular weekly visit to the metropolis Tuesday evening.

Harry Francis, the genial manager of Boyes' Hot Springs, came up from the city on Tuesday.

—Mrs. P. N. Stofen and Mrs. W. S. Goodman visited Petaluma friends and relatives a few days this week.

Mine Host Miller, the popular proprietor of the Union Hotel, returned from a business trip to the metropolis Tuesday evening.

Mr. Dakin, father of Henry Dakin, the efficient manager of the Hearst ranch, is the guest of his son at that place for a few days.

F. L. A. Gorlinski, civil engineer of the California Northwestern railway, and a corps of men, are working on the track near Petaluma.

He was very gruff and unduly rough in his manner and refused to leave. Words ensued after which the stranger proceeded to "do up" Mr. Mullen.

Plans for our new city hall are in the hands of the City Trustees, having been prepared and sent up by the noted architect, A. C. Lutgens, of San Francisco.

New pipe has been ordered by the Sonoma Water Works and its arrival is expected most any time, when the work of replacing the old system will be commenced.

The Petaluma Incubator Company's factory may not be removed from Petaluma after all. The company has received many flattering offers from various towns in California and the east to locate.

Two other strangers, friends of the trespasser, happened along about this time, as also did Mitchell Mullen, who has but one arm. The three visitors endeavored to thrash the Mullen boys with indifferent success.

Constable Ryan arrested the three men on a charge of battery preferred by Mr. Mullen and upon being tried by Justice of the Peace Small, were fined $5 each. Their home is in San Francisco. They gave as their names Tom Smith, Elmer Driscol and —— Darby.

Last Sunday evening a man possessed of more gall than courtesy entered the premises of Mr. Mullen at El Verano and proceeded to make himself comfortable in the hammock. Emmet Mullen after a while spoke to the half slumbering gent and requested that he move on.

Mr. George M. Burn, a peaceable and industrious resident of El Verano, was rudely attacked by a summer visitor in El Verano Sunday afternoon. He endeavored to get away from the man, who seemed to be looking for trouble and anxious to find it, but before he could get away was struck on the nose by a large rock hurled by the culprit. A physician was summoned and the wound was dressed. The bones of the nose were badly shattered, but it is sincerely hoped by Mr. Burns' many friends that no serious results will follow and that the wound will soon heal.

To Be Submitted

The trustees wil soon submit whatever plans they have to the people and ask for suggestions before adopting any definite ones. The present plans of Mr. Lutgen can be seen at Trustee Breitenbach's place of business.

The plans call for a two story stone structure, with plenty of room for all purposes and a special room on the upper floor for a public library. There is to be an interior court, roofed over, and in fact the Spanish idea of architecture has been taken as the basis throughout.

COURT NOTES.

A petition for letters of administration was filed Monday by Oscar P. Van Valkenberg in the estate of Hester Ann Van Valkenberg. The value of the estate is set at $3500 and the yearly rental at $140.

Divorce proceedings were begun Monday by Margaret Elizabeth Stamker vs. Ira Gilbert Stamker. F. A. Meyer is attorney for plaintiff. The suit is brought on the ground of desertion.

A suit to quiet title was filed Monday by H. Mecham vs. Eleanor Solomon, executrix of the last will of Francis Solomon. F. A. Meyer is attorney for plaintiff.

The case of Charles Filippine vs. Charles Appleby et al. to quiet title came up in Department One Monday on argument, which was submitted and taken under advisement.

The case of Mrs. Peterson vs. City of Santa Rosa was postponed to Tuesday, July 5, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Superior Judge Seawell granted an interlocutory decree of divorce Monday afternoon in the case of Mrs. Clara E. Harney vs. Patrick S. Harney, on the ground of extreme cruelty. The plaintiff was awarded the custody of the minor children.

The final accounting in the estate of F. W. Gill of Sebastopol was allowed in the Superior Court Monday, and the distribution of the estate ordered.

It is probable that a civil suit will be brought in the matter of the disposition of the Healdsburg property of the late Mrs. Margaret G. Ross. The petition was dismissed by Judge Seawell Monday on the ground that it was not a matter for the probate court. The case in point is one in which Lena Parsons makes a claim and establishes the same by numerous witnesses that Mrs. Ross, during her lifetime, entered into a verbal contract with her to come and make her home with her and nurse her and that in return for the same Mrs. Ross had promised to give her the house and lot to which she now makes claim.

Articles of incorporation were filed Tuesday for the W. T. Brush Mercantile Company to conduct a general merchandise business at Cloverdale. The directors of the new corporation are W. T. Brush, Fred W. Brush, O. H. Brush, Mrs. Lucy Brush and Pauline Brush. The new firm is capitalized at $20,000, all of which is subscribed by the directors.

The case of Mary A. Roney vs. Edwin Reynolds occupied the attention of Judge Burnett the entire day Tuesday. The case is one in which the plaintiff seeks to recover $20,000 damages for alleged breach of contract and agreement to loan plaintiff money to purchase real estate in San Francisco. The case was progressing slowly and will probably consume another day. The plaintiff seeks to show through the failure of defendant to furnish the funds, her option on certain property lapsed, thereby causing her to forfeit $500, which she had put up to hold the property.

A motion for additional alimony and counsel fees in the case of Bertha Weigand vs. Carl Weigand was being argued before Judge Seawell Tuesday. The argument was still in progress when the Republican went to press.

SHORT WINDED.

Why Some Persons Become Breathless With Severe Exercise.

Breathing consists of two rhythmical alternating processes—inbreathing, in which the muscles of the chest play their part, and outbreathing, in which the elasticity of the lungs and the weight of the chest force out air. The number of breaths, which varies with the age, is one to every three or four pulse beats. In ordinary breathing only about one-sixth of the air in the lungs is renewed, but in exercise the amount is considerably increased and the number of breaths multiplied.

In disease such as reduction of lung area the blood is in danger of becoming overcharged with carbonic acid, and the lungs struggle to get rid of this and to bring in more oxygen. Exercise causes a similar change, and if of the right sort and not too long continued the circulation and breathing are quickened, and the result is good.

In severe exercise, such as long continued speed trials, the quickened breathing can no longer cope with its task, so carbonic acid accumulates faster than the heart and the lungs can deal with it, and breathlessness results.

HABERDASHER.

The Word Is Supposed to Mean Things of Little Value.

The word haberdasher first appears in the language as coming from hapertas, the name of a fabric mentioned in the Liber Albus along with wool, canvas and felt, as subject to customs duty, about 1419. A parallel and almost contemporary list has habertassherie.

The word is supposed to mean things of little value—small wares such as buttons and tapes. Skeat derives it from the Icelandic haperbask—trumpery, pedlars' wares. In a register of burials of Ware in 1655 we have one entry: "Michael Watkins, London, haberdasher of hatts," probably this being the first material of which hats were made.

Chambers gives another meaning to the word. He says it is derived from the ancient name for a neck cloth, berdash, which is derived from beard, and tache, a covering.

Hapertas was originally a cloth of a particular kind, the width of which was settled by Magna Charta. Hence a haberdasher was the seller of hapertasserie.—London Answers.

THE LUDDITES.

Authors of the Famous Stocking Frame Riots In England.

Early in 1811 bands of distressed stocking knitters in Nottinghamshire began a long series of riots, marked by most wanton mischief. Assembling in parties of from six to sixty under a leader styled general or Ned Ludd, disguised and armed with swords, pistols, hammers and axes and bound together by illegal oaths, they succeeded in smashing stocking frames in all parts of England, and their daring outrages continued even when a large military force was brought into the neighborhood and two London police magistrates came down to assist the civil power.

To such a pitch had this dangerous disturbance grown that a royal proclamation was issued offering a reward of £50 for the apprehension of any of the offenders. Not until October, 1816, did this wholesale destruction and violence cease, by which time more than a thousand frames and many lace machines had been broken up and the mischief had spread into neighboring counties.—London Chronicle.

A Pair of Them.

"One of the consolations of advancing years," said a man well past middle age, "is the privilege we take unto ourselves of jesting on the subject with people just a few years older.

"For instance," he continued, "last night I took dinner with an uncle, aged ninety, and enjoyed it immensely. I love to hear old men talk, and this is my only great-uncle. Well, my Great-uncle Elias told a good many stories of old times, and they were good stories, too, but he repeated himself now and then.

"My younger uncle, also Uncle Elias, who was present, got a trifle testy after awhile, no doubt because he didn't get a chance to talk quite as much as usual, and he muttered to me:

"'Gracious goodness, that makes six times Uncle Elias has told about how he once got even with a schoolteacher who whipped him when he was a boy! Old men get awfully forgetful.'

"'That's so,' I said. 'This makes three times you've said to me that Uncle Elias has told that tale six times.'"—Indianapolis Journal.

Monte-Christo In Real Life.

One of the most sensational cases of escape from jail ever recorded took place at Lille, France, where a man named Vandenwegaete was shut up in the condemned cell underground and approached from a subterranean passage. On a Monday evening at 8 o'clock he was found to have vanished from his cell, and not till Tuesday could the secret of his escape be discovered. With the moistened bread served to him he had taken a print of the lock and had also made a mold, into which, to make a key, he had poured the metal of a tin drinking can, melted down in another utensil of the cell upon the little stove the cell contained. His key properly made, he had opened the cell door at night, taken a second print of the lock of the subterranean passage door and, his second key made, had chosen his moment for escape, taking a long rope, by means of which he had scaled the wall, breaking into a house opposite the jail, where he got away with a suit of clothes.

The General Utility Consul.

In those larger towns in Turkey where England is represented by a consul that official is looked upon as a sort of court of appeal by Christians. Armenians, Bulgarians, Macedonians and even Jews, who have probably never heard an English word spoken, will appeal to the British consul when in difficulties, and he rarely refuses his kind offices. In ordinary cases his unofficial backing of the "giaours" is effective.

IN THE ROUNDHOUSE

THE ATTENTION THAT IS BESTOWED UPON THE LOCOMOTIVES.

Constant and Careful Grooming Required by the Great Iron Horses of the Rail—How the Tires of the Big Driving Wheels Are Tightened.

Any one at all familiar with railroads has seen the engineer dismount from the cab, oil can in hand, as soon as the train has come to a stop at some way station; seen him walk slowly about the ponderous machine, feeling of each bearing with his free hand as he filled the cups with oil; seen him perhaps tap a valve gently with a wrench or examine critically some ill working air pump.

To any man all this is interesting, but how many are there in all the vast crowd that enter the city daily at the great terminals who can tell offhand what becomes of the train when once the cars are emptied of the passengers? To be sure, they have seen the cars on a siding out in the yard. They know perhaps that a roundhouse is a place where engines are kept when not in actual use. But beyond this the ideas of the ordinary man are a bit hazy.

As soon as the passengers have left a train that has just come in from a long dusty run it is backed out into the yard, and the cars are set off on a side track. Men go upon them at once and begin to put them in readiness for the next trip. The windows are washed, cars freed from all filth and dirt, seats cleaned, water tanks cared for and the lighting apparatus put in order.

The locomotive, after leaving the cars, proceeds at once to the roundhouse, where the ponderous machine also receives a proper overhauling. First of all, the tanks are filled with water and the fuel supply is replenished. Then a few puffs bring the fire box above the ash pit, where the fires are cleaned and dumped altogether. The next thing is to stable the great iron horse.

The roundhouse itself is a most uninviting place, with its soot begrimed walls and smoky interior. These buildings are all constructed on the same general lines, low, one story structures, generally built of brick and semicircular in shape. The center of the circle is the center of the turntable. Arranged along the inner side of the building is a line of doors, each exactly like its neighbor. Under each runs a track of standard gauge, giving the whole an appearance not unlike a spider's web, the center of which is the turntable.

The turntable itself consists of a pit walled with stone, across which is a bridge free at the ends, but balanced at the center on a spindle. Rails are laid across this, as if it were a part of the roadbed.

When the fires of the locomotive have been cared for the engineer runs his machine upon the table. With deft hand at the throttle, he brings it to a stop at the precise point where the hundred tons of steel balance on the spindle that supports the bridge. Then the ponderous mass is slowly revolved until the required track is reached and the engine is backed into the roundhouse.

Once within the house the engineer's duty is done. He has but to go to the office and report in a book prepared for the purpose any repairs that are needed, and he can go home, assured that his machine will be ready for him when he starts on the next run.

The engine is now turned over to the roundhouse crew, who go to work on it at once. The attention that a locomotive receives on arrival at the roundhouse is about the same that one would expect to see bestowed upon a race horse. Wipers go over every inch of the surface carefully, removing all dust and oil. Others drop into the pit beneath the machine and wipe the running gear. The headlight is carefully cared for and the brass polished. In fact, the whole machine is put in first class shape in every way.

Throughout this work keen watch is kept for any signs of broken parts, and any found are repaired. The hundred or more flues are cleaned by steam pressure.

An engine seldom comes to the house that does not need repairs of some sort. The delicate mechanism is constantly becoming broken, and unceasing attention is required.

One of the most interesting of all the repairs that are made in the roundhouse is the tightening of the tires on the drive wheels. Each wheel is surrounded with a heavy steel tire. These occasionally work loose, and it becomes necessary that they be tightened without sending the locomotive to the shops.

To do this a stream of oil is fed automatically upon the tire and allowed to burn as it runs down. The result is that the whole rim is soon a circle of flame. This is kept up for a long time, and the tire, being heated faster than the wheel itself on account of the proximity of the fire, expands until the thin pieces of sheet iron can be inserted between the wheel and the tire. When the tire has again become cold it contracts and clutches the wheel hard and fast.

The cumbersome repairs, such as turning down worn drive wheels and replacing boilers, go to the shops, where lathes, cranes and forges are to be had. But all the minor troubles are remedied at the "stables," and the foreman of the roundhouse is responsible for the condition of the engines. He is the man to whom all look in an emergency, and it is he who must look forward and plan for the repairs in such a way as not to interfere with the regular operation of the trains.—Boston Globe.
